

ECONOMICS & BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Head of Department: Mrs L. Mawer

Why choose the subject? The course is made up of micro and macroeconomics and helps to understand and explain many events in the news. Microeconomics includes topics such as the impact of obesity and alcohol misuse on society. Macroeconomics addresses a wide range of national and international issues for example, controlling the economy, government debt and the impact of economies such as China and India on the UK.

Who is eligible? There are no prior learning requirements. The syllabus assumes no previous study of Economics but allows for a progression from GCSEs in this subject. Students need to achieve at least a B in Mathematics at GCSE.
